GRAF ZEPPELIN (LZ-127)

Germany's bid for post World War I trade was the giant commercial Airship the "GRAF ZEPPELIN", named in honor of Count Zeppelin, the inventor of this type of lighter than air craft. The "GRAF ZEPPELIN" was built in 1928 and was not formally dismantled until 1940.

6641 Ship Letters Westbound

Unpaid

Although letters intended for private ships should have been charged half the packet rate,[1] many letters for Canada show no prepayment, particularly if sent from a port where they might easily be handed directly to ships' captains (although Sunderland was an unlikely port of departure for Canada).

Sunderland, England to Cobourg, Upper Canada, 1st April 1830.

A letter with no evidence of prepayment carried by private ship to Quebec. It arrived in Quebec on 3rd June 1830 where it was marked as a ship letter and charged one shilling and sixpence halfpenny Currency: twopence halfpenny Currency the ship letter fee and one shilling and fourpence Currency, the rate for a single letter carried 301-400 miles.[2]
